Hamburg, Aug 27 —The papers here which have been accused of greatly exaggerating the situation turn on the authorities to-day and attack them for persistently denying the presence in Hamburg of Asiatic cholera until the outbreak of the pest could no longer be concealment no longer possible They claim that if the authorities had admitted at the start that the disease was true cholera sanitary measures could have been enforced that would have prevented the spread of the disease to the extent which it has now revealed.

Officially Admitted

Washington Aug 25 —The United States consul at Hamburg cabled to the state department this morning as follows Hamburg authorities admit to-day that Asiatic cholera has been in Hamburg since August 18. Vessels and their baggage leaving Hamburg after that date ought to be disinfected in New York Up to the 23rd of August 201 cases and twenty five deaths occurred The Hamburg steamship line is complying with the instructions of the treasury circular of July 8. Cattle, if and how long, quarantine will be imposed

Canada Endangered

Montreal, Aug 25—The provincial authorities have addressed a communication to the Dominion government calling attention to the danger of cholera infection by means of the Hamburg, American line steamships plying between here and Hamburg and asking that quarantine regulations be enforced

Dynamite Explosions at Trieste

Trieste, Aug 25.—Two explosions which occurred to-day in front of the official residence of the stadhalther caused slight damage. From the pieces of metal found in the vicinity it was seen that two bombs were exploded. They had been filled with dynamite or some other high explosive.

A Steamer in Quarantine

New York, Aug. 25.—The steamer Italia arrived with eighty two steerage passengers all of whom were well, having been under observation for fourteen days before embarkation. The baggage of all passengers was subjected to a thorough disinfection by live steam, followed by a powerful combustion of sulphur. The Italia is the first of the German steamships leaving an infected port. She sailed from Stettin Aug 8th with eighty-two steerage passengers, but no cabin passengers. The steerage passengers were from the cholera infected district and the United States consul had cabled this fact to Surgeon Asbury Foster The health officer of the port was promptly notified and was prepared to detain the vessel and disinfect the passengers and baggage before disembarkation

Two Cases Dead in Persia

Washington, Aug. 25.—The vice consul general at Teheran telegraphs that the estimated deaths in Persia from cholera are 35,000, 9,000 in Meshed, 12,000 in Tabriz, 6000 in Teheran and 10,000 in other places

Infected Passengers Not Wanted

London, Aug 26 The Hamburg American Packet company is the first of the transatlantic lines to separate its first-class passengers from its immigrant traffic because of the prevalence of cholera in Hamburg The company has decided to temporarily withdraw its fast steamers Augusta Victoria, Fuerst Bismarck, Normania and Columbia from the Hamburg service for the present, and hence forth until further notice these vessels will make Southampton their port of departure and arrival.

Arkansas, Aug 25.—The excitement caused by the acknowledgment of the physicians that Asiatic cholera is in the city has not subsided, and those who can afford to do so are making ready to flee to various places and escape the disease There is no appreciable change in the situation

Excitement at Atlanta

Atlanta, Aug 25.—The excitement in this city over the outbreak of cholera is increasing There is little doubt that the disease was brought here by the crews from eastern Europe. The first victims were dock laborers. They were taken to the hospitals where the doctors stated that it was ordinary cholera and that nothing was to be dreaded from it. Master Workman Sweeney [illegible] dressed in a disguise A number of strikers assembled on the sidewalk in front of the place and threatened dire vengeance to the grand master Sweeney was frightened and the police dispersed the crowd

A bitter feeling against Sweeney has developed among the strikers who consider that they have been duped and betrayed by him One of the strikers stated that Sweeney had given them no chance to get their places back again If he had given them an intimation that he intended to declare the strike off, the men say they would have had a chance to see their former employers and make terms with them, but declaring the strike off at midnight gave them no chance

Sweeney had better get out of town and get out quick was the remark of one man.

How Strikers May Go Back

Buffalo, Aug 25 —A test was made this morning to the men of one class of the railroad on which a strike recently occurred and the question was asked whether the companies would reinstate the old men The reply invariably was that the men would not be taken back as a body Some of them would not be taken back under any circumstances, and the others could get back only under the conditions governing new men If any of them made application for work the application would be filed and considered in due time the same as the application of unknown men

Troops Moving Homeward.

Buffalo, Aug. 25 —The troops have begun to move homeward Orders were issued at military headquarters this morning the effect of which will be to send home about 1500 of the troops. Adjutant general Porter said "We will send no more troops away until we are sure that they will not be needed"

Another serious case of shooting by the military occurred to-day. Michael Brodzeski, a boy 17 years old, was throwing stones at some of the soldiers of the Twenty second regiment He would not surrender when told to but started to run A soldier shot him probably fatally wounding him

AN OFFICIAL ORDER.

SHERIFF'S OFFICE, August 25.

Adjutant-general Porter New York Militia:

The necessity of the presence of the state militia here having ceased, I respectfully request that the troops be withdrawn. I desire to express to you on behalf of our citizens and myself our thanks for the prompt assistance of yourself and those under your command Yours respectfully

(Signed) ALBERT BECK Sheriff.

General Porter agreed with the sheriff that a reduction of the force could safely be made and issued orders to that effect. The remainder of the troops will be withdrawn as rapidly as possible

Alabama Miners Indignant

Birmingham, Ala., Aug 25—Last night about 10 o'clock Sheriff George Morrow received a call from G. W. Shirley, warden of the Coal creek prison mines for 100 men. He wanted them presumably for the purpose of protecting the convicts. The posse was organized immediately on receipt of the telegram but before the sheriff and men left the courthouse a second telegram was received to the effect that all was quiet for the night and that trouble might be expected to-day. It has been known for some weeks past that the miners in this section were growing sore over the convict lease system which is now in vogue throughout the Birmingham district and the trouble has been anticipated.

Transcontinental Railways Meeting.

New York, Aug 25—The second day's session of the transcontinental meeting was called to order by Chairman Vining at 10 o'clock. George Olds of the Canadian Pacific, who was non-arrival delayed business yesterday arrived at the meeting early. Almost the entire morning was taken up by the discussion of the effect of import rates over domestic traffic No conclusion was reached C E Spurr of the Southern Pacific as chairman of a committee on the modification of rates submitted the committee's report relative to the minimum rate that would be accepted by the various roads on all classes of freight

Several other minor matters on the docket were discussed but no conclusion reached. There was much difference of opinion expressed regarding the matter of import rates. [illegible] from Europe and other European ports to San Francisco affected western business in various ways so that much difficulty is found in arriving at a uniform understanding.

There were two candidates for supreme prelate L. I. Blackmer of San Diego, Cal., the present prelate and George H Morrison of Nevada the present supreme master at arms. By one ballot was taken One hundred and twelve votes were cast, of which Morrison received 53 and Blackmer 59. A majority elects in the supreme lodge.

Supreme keeper of records and seal R. L. C White of Nashvill Tenn was re-elected by acclamation The same honor was awarded to S J Willey of Wilmington, Del., supreme chancellor of exchequer No candidates appeared in the lists against them so no ballot was necessary

There were two candidates for supreme master at arms Supreme inner guard Barkwell of Wyoming wanted it so did Supreme representative Lyon of Kansas The first ballot resulted Barkwell 88, Lyon 6. Kansas won its only battle before the supreme lodge For supreme inner guard there four candidates Eugene Rare of Illinois, H A Bigelow of Washington, T. La Hache of Texas and A B. Gardiner of New York The first and only ballot resulted Gardiner 61, Race 20, Bigelow 17, La Hache 10 Gardiner's election was made unanimous John W Thompson of Washington, D C, was re-elected by acclamation supreme outer guard.

At the special meeting of the supreme lodge last night exemplification of the new ritual was witnessed by the entire body The work is said to be a vast improvement over the existing ritual and the special committee, which has spent much time in its composition, will certainly be complimented by the supreme lodge voting in adopt it without amendment It is said to be the acme of ritualistic perfection and as such will soon be tested by the grand lodge jurisdictions and the subordinate lodges.

Charles A Lee of Rhode Island who has been chosen official stenographer of the supreme lodge for this session, has acted in that capacity for the lodge since 1877.

COMPETITIVE DRILLS.

The competitive drills for the division grand prize of $1,500 were resumed at the Exposition hall park this morning, with Maj S. M. Whiteside and Lieutenants Eastman and Roudiez as inspectors. There was a large crowd of spectators in attendance and the respective divisions were heartily applauded as they accomplished some of the many intricate display movements with military precision New Albany Division No. 5 of New Albany, Ind, Capt H M. Hooper, were the first called for drill and marched on the field headed by the New Albany Cornet band. They presented a soldierly appearance and executed the movements both in marching and sword manual in excellent style and in quicker time than any of the other previous competing divisions, finishing in twenty-two minutes.

Grand Rapids division, No. 6, Grand Rapids, Mich, Captain James Bayne, were the next in order, and were escorted on to the field by the Niles (Mich.) band This division did not create much of an impression, the marching movements being only ordinary and the sword exercises faulty

Pioneer division, No 1, Little Rock, Ark., Captain B. W. Bartlett, were the third division to drill, and they put up a great drill that won for them merited applause Their inspection was a little faulty, but their foot movements, alignment and sword exercises were first class, and they marched off the field amid the cheers of the audience. They were unaccompanied by any music The appearance of Mystic division, No 12, of Girard, Kan, although not preceded by a band was the occasion for an ovation from their many friends from the Sunflower state who occupied a prominent position in the grand stand They made a fine appearance and at once became favorites, not only with the spectators, but with the members of the rival divisions, who freely acknowledged that they would be hard to beat Their marching movements were perfection, while in the display movements in the formation of the square and different kinds of crosses, they moved as one man and were heartily cheered. They were equally proficient in the sword manual and are looked upon as formidable opponents by the other divisions who witnessed their drill, which they completed in about twenty-four minutes.

The battalion drill is over, as there are no more battalions to compete, the Second Ohio, Second Kansas and First District of Columbia regiments having withdrawn early in the week. And the Third Missouri which was to have been on the field at 9:30 this morning failed to show up They notified the adjutant general last evening that their men were so scattered that they could not possibly get them together for drill, so that the First Indiana, Col. W. L. Heskell commanding, wins the first and only prize by default of the other battalions entered

SUPREME OFFICERS.

CONCERNING ELECTRICITY

We publish from the Washington Evening Star an interesting communication founded on the evidence of the weather map concerning electricity.

This subtle element has in our day become such a factor in human economy providing light for our dwellings, public buildings and streets, and propelling power for machinery and vehicles of transportation, that it is entertaining and useful for us to acquire all the knowledge in regard to it that scientific observation and discovery disclose and make plain to our understanding. Our own Franklin was the first man who conceived and to some extent utilized the idea of this wonderful force in nature and that it might to some extent be under human control. By a simple appliance borrowed from schoolboy sports he brought lightning down from the clouds and in some measure directed its course. The house is still standing in Portsmouth, N. H. on which he with his own hands is said to have been placed an iron rod, his own invention, still remaining there which safely conducted the destructive agency from the stormy skies to the earth at his feet. But even he, the great philosopher his face beaming with the radiations of the lightning he had tamed probably had no conception of the practical use that would be made of it, and would lift up his spectacles in amazement to see what a common every day agency it has become in human affairs, familiar as the sun beams in our households where with a twist of the thumb and finger our rooms are lit up light, and the uneducated motorneer but turns a screw and unlocks a power that whirls a train of cars laden with pleasure seekers to our beautiful Casino, safely threading as it goes many of our streets for the accommodation of strangers and residents specially landed at their doors.

"The claims for the weather map may at times seem a smile on the part of those who have little respect for it. Still I am not particularly anxious to make the weather map the climax of everything, and to claim more for it than the facts will warrant. But what the plain simple facts will warrant that I do claim.

Electricity has ever been a word of mystery. What it is no one has, as yet, made known. It would seem like a primary agent, yet not more so than steam, nor any more mysterious. All forces in nature are mysterious to us. We cannot, in this existence at least go back of first causes or primary facts. Franklin proved the electricity of nature and of the arts to be identical. So I do not think that there is any one but what will admit that if we can ascertain what the electricity of nature is we will find out what it is so far as human mind is able to comprehend it as the arts. The evidence of the weather map is a subtle power of heat that heat under certain conditions is the primary cause of electricity, and that it bears about the same relation to heat as ozone does to the atmosphere.

That there are certain [illegible] electricity will travel north with the low and sometimes to quite a high latitude.

So there is all that is necessary to produce the effect in the temperate zones at least a relatively north low, with no "high near to counteract the effect of the heat." This will produce electricity every time.

Given, a planet composed of land and water, or all water for that matter, but with land enough to furnish the proper evaporation, and the sun power to furnish the heat, together with the favorable conditions of the "low," as heretofore referred to, and the electricity is assured every time.

The clouds gather at "low" and thereby shut off the heat of the sun from the land in the immediate vicinity of this center, but the heated airs are the while moving steadily along from the districts further to the south where the sunlight is quite uninterrupted. In addition to this the heat power of the sun is exercised along the top of the bank of clouds that are gathered at "low" which evidently fully makes up for the heat that may be absorbed at times near the center below.

The warm [illegible] and their results about the [illegible] and they result [illegible] with the [illegible] in [illegible] of heat in [illegible] which water [illegible] by the warm [illegible] spended [illegible] the support of the heated [illegible] and [illegible] the form of [illegible] the earth. The [illegible] in [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] will be further [illegible] when the [illegible] of electricity [illegible] results [illegible] will be further [illegible] north say in the St. Lawrence valley with the [illegible] all [illegible] the [illegible] of the [illegible] Most [illegible] when the [illegible] of electricity [illegible] will be found. The [illegible] shall [illegible] of the [illegible] that [illegible] with the [illegible] temperature [illegible] Observations [illegible] the power of the [illegible] [illegible] necessary [illegible] low [illegible] heat [illegible] the [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] power [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Bad Taste in Insect Design.

There are some insect designs ... it is difficult to account ... woman who is a good judge of a pretty ... hang on her person a ... flower made out of gold and ... The Prince of Wales ... it is his favorite gift on ... tions, and he uses it ... as anybody else. In fact he ... some of the blame of ... signs in vogue. According ... he presented not long ago ... sionally musical brooch ... was an imitation of a violin ... to his niece who was lately ... a diamond set flower. The ... make such designs fashionable ... can never make them in taste.

What is the matter with them? Several things. In the first place ... shouldn't imitate natural objects. It's a long story why, but I will try to abridge. Art that imitates is never good art. Imitations ask admiration merely for the skill with which one thing has been made to look like another. This is an idea that has nothing to do with beauty or with ornament, and it is artisan's and not artist's work. Besides, to use an object, as a violin, for another purpose than the one for which it was designed is absurd and stupid. This sort of thing is a low kind of humor, on a par with puns.

True art is creative. It aims at producing forms of pure beauty. Such a form asks admiration for itself, for its form or color, without comparing up foreign ideas. Art may make use of natural forms, but only to combine their beauties into a new form, never imitatively.—Harper's Bazar.

Mr. Gladstone's Eyes.

Fifty-four years ago Mr. Gladstone conceived the idea that it would be better for his eyesight were he to substitute candles for the somewhat primitive lamp by which he had been in the habit of studying by night. The light shed by two candles was not sufficient for his purpose, but with the inflexibility and perseverance which are his most marked characteristics he continued to perform his nightly task, with the result that his right eye became so much weakened that his medical adviser enjoined upon him the necessity of abstaining totally from work, and living as far as possible in a dark room for six months. Long before that period had expired Mr. Gladstone made a trip to southern Europe in company with his old college friend, Sir Stephen Glynne.

Once again a grave accident to Mr. Gladstone's eye threatened for a few days to produce the most serious consequences. It is well known that he did not begin to wield the ax as an amateur feller of trees until he was forty years of age, and not long afterward as Sir Stephen looked upward as he was cutting down a big oak and struck him in the right eye, which is the more sensitive of the two.

A few days of rest and of abstention from work sufficed to restore him entirely, but it is a remarkable fact that the "arcus senilis," or circular ring outside the pupil, was developed in Mr. Gladstone's eyes at a much earlier period than is common with human beings whose life is destined to be more than usually prolonged.—London Telegraph.

How Authors Work.

An ingenious reporter has been interviewing a number of celebrated authors to discover what are their habits and attitudes while writing. M. Alphonse Daudet, he tells us, smiles insiliciously; M. Emile Zola repeats in a loud voice the phrase which is at the tip of his pen; M. Edmund de Goncourt moves his lips as if he were eating; M. Jules Lemaitre strokes his mustache with his left hand; M. Renan looks in the palm of his hand, as if to aid inspiration there; M. Ludovic Halevy looks up to the ceiling to collect his thoughts; M. Meilhac puts his head into his hands to meditate; M. Jean Richepin taps on his desk when he is in want of a phrase; M. Francois Coppee lights a cigarette while searching for a rhyme; M. Henri Bornier scratches his head; M. Emile Bergerat whistles; M. Jean Rameau, when he is writing verses, seems to be thinking of something else, and finally M. Georges Ohnet appears to be thinking of nothing.—London Globe.

What the Baton Was For.

The Marina band was playing. The people were thick; the flies, also. Director Sousa was standing on his little platform waving the magic baton, and naturally, from his elevated position, he was the cynosure of all eyes.

Among the crowd who had gathered to hear the concert were two old colored ladies, apparently from the way back districts and evidently unaccustomed to such sights. One of them cast her eyes upon John Philip and inquired of her companion:

"Honey, whad you 'spose dat man doin up dere wavin dat stick?"

"Go 'long, child," responded the other contemptuously, "he's shoonin off de flies, ob cosc; doan you see he's baldhaided an ain't got no hat?" Washington Post.

"The Ghost of Leap Year."

In France there is a popular tradition among the peasantry, especially those of the Seine country and of La Chatre, concerning a demon called "The Ghost of Leap Year." It is said that every leap year this peculiar sort of evil demon makes his dread appearance. The creature's sole pleasure is to be displeased with everything and everybody. His shape is not distinguishable in member, joint or limb, but taken altogether his hideous and uncanny actions make him a much dreaded monster.—St. Louis Republic.

A Primitive Primrose Dame.

A Primrose dame, a member of the grand council of a certain seaside habitation, called to canvass an elector. The elector was a Liberal and tried to get some fun out of his visitor. "What do you think, ma'am," he asked, "about the eight hour movement?" "Well, it does seem hard, don'tcherknow," replied the dame, "to make men work from 8 o'clock in the morning till 8 o'clock at night."—London Truth.

Suicides in the Bible.

The first instance of suicide recorded in scripture is that of Samson (B. C. 1117). The second is that of Saul (B. C. 1055). Rather than fall into the hands of the Philistines, when hard pressed in battle, he drew his sword and fell upon it and so died. Judas Iscariot, through remorse, committed suicide. [illegible]

THE ONLY GENUINE GOLD CURE.

Just now there's a good deal of talk about the famous gold cure, and most people have a number of opinions on the subject.

You need not, however, entertain any false notions about our gold cures, watches, etc. They include what is useful, what is ornamental and what is both. If your taste is very, very good, we can gratify it very, very thoroughly; if it isn't particularly good nothing will cultivate it quicker than a glance over our assortment of souvenir spoons. We don't claim that the display is dazzling, but we do say that it isn't surpassed anywhere, and we also make this claim about it, you will marvel at the moderation of the prices.
